In the heart of magical and romantic Maremma is L'Andana, a country house hotel which leaves nothing wanting. Set amidst this land of stunning landscapes rich in history and culture and renowned for its superb food and wine, L'Andana cannot fail to please the most discerning clientele. L'Andana refers to lines of cypress and umbrella pines so typical of the Maremma region of Tuscany and one's arrival at this charming hotel is indeed up a tree lined drive with the shimmering Mediterranean in the background.

Inside what was formerly the summer house of Duke Leopold in 1850 one is greeted by the charming and extremely professional staff of L'Andana. Proprietors, the Moretti family describe L'Andana as "...a reflection of the Maremma...unique, authentic, generous..." and indeed it is. Each of the bedrooms and suites has been furnished and decorated with sublime taste and style maintaining the neo-classical character of the villa whilst cleverly incorporating contemporary touches and expectations. Superb linen, sumptuous bathrooms, soft and relaxing colours and enchanting views combine to create the most luxurious and pleasing bedrooms one could wish for.

The superb chef and his team have been chosen by Alain Ducasse to run the kitchen at L'Andana and it certainly more than lives up to expectations. Using fresh local ingredients with many ingredients such as olive oil produced on the estate, the cuisine here is authentic Maremma but with an added elegance and finery - the end result being beautifully presented but deliciously tasty and genuine dishes. A fine cellar adds to guests' enjoyment of such superb cuisine and in addition to the Michelin restaurant called 'Trattoria Toscana' there is the excellent La Villa Restaurant as an alternative dining venue and where breakfast is served. Delicious breakfasts are prepared and served from the characterful traditional kitchen and service is supreme at all times.

L'Andana really is a place to relax and unwind, to breathe in the clear air from the nearby Mediterranean and to escape from the stresses and strains of modern day living. Enjoy the excellent SPA with its fabulous treatments, maybe play the odd game of tennis, go horse riding in the beautiful countryside or a day trip to Siena and Chianti - the choice is endless.

Everything about L'Andana is wonderful and it is indeed a very special discovery so just step back and absorb all it has to offer!
