A delightful ancient manor house, Villa Le Barone has been in the famous Della Robbia family since the fifteenth century and is now a wonderfully comfortable and characterful hotel. Set amidst the timeless Chianti landscape, Villa Le Barone imbues the atmosphere of a charming country house hotel where guests can relax and feel completely at home.

Villa Le Barone is set in a large rose garden, with lavender and olive trees and enchanting views over the rolling Tuscan hills. Inside, this atmospheric old family home has been renovated thoughtfully so as to provide all the comforts of a modern hotel at the same time as retaining its original character with antique furniture, paintings, rare books and romantic objects from the family's past. Each of the 28 bedrooms has been individually designed with its own character using fresh pretty fabrics, old prints on the walls and rafter and beams. Some rooms have their own private terrace and all enjoy gorgeous views of the gardens and Tuscan landscape.

There are reading rooms, drawing rooms and a bar where guests can relax with a book and a glass of wine after maybe a game of tennis, a walk or cycle ride in the surrounding countryside or a swim in the pool. Delicious lunches of fresh salads with Villa Le Barone's own olive oil is served either on the terrace or around the swimming pool and in the evening typical Tuscan food accompanied by superb Chianti wines can be enjoyed either on the terrace or in the old cellar restaurant.

Villa Le Barone is the ideal base from which to explore Siena, Florence and many of the beautiful towns of Chianti. Be it a long weekend, a summer holiday or as somewhere to stay on a 'journey' through Italy, Villa Le Barone is an excellent find and still retains the charm of years gone by together with delicious cuisine, friendly service and complete tranquillity.
